

In the Fall of 1995 the City of Fort Wright, Kentucky decided to preserve 13 acres of wooded hillsides on Highland Pike, donated to the city by the George Kreuzjans Family. The citizens and the city developed the Fort Wright Nature Center. Ten years of work by the city and many volunteers has contributed to trail construction, parking, habitat enhancement, shelter construction and has resulted in almost 5 miles of scenic trails. In 2004 construction of a large pond was completed to help regulate the water runoff from surrounding neighborhoods and erosion along the Moser Branch Creek. The sewer system that ran through the creek was relocated to improve the water quality of the creek.

Please:
 Stay on trails.
 Keep dogs on leashes.
 Carry out your own garbage
 Carry out other garbage too.
 Don't pick flowers or harvest trees.

No Swimming
 No Firearms
 No Boating
 (except with special permission)
 No Motorized Vehicles
 No Frog Giggling
 No Ice Skating
 The Center is closed from dusk to dawn.
 Fishing will start when posted.

